See the small white boat in the sky,
Sailing t'wards the west,
High above a cinnamon tree,
Where white rabbit rests.
With no sail nor oars it skims
O'er the Milky Way,
Floating among the clouds,
It slowly just fades away.

Through the silver galaxy sail,
Through a rainbow land
Of clouds that billow high in the sky,
Where will it go then?
Onwards to a far off place
Where shines a golden light,
The dawn star, a guiding light,
It shines, how it shines so bright.
