

A painting rhyme

<https://riverofsong.uk/>

There's nothing like a sparkling rainbow to help us appreciate the colours that are our inheritance on earth.

A Waldorf verse to use before painting. Rain and sun mixed together in the sky produces the most magical colours. The same goes for paint, water, a paintbrush and a surface. Music by Dany Rosevear. Illustration by my granddaughter.

C F C F C G7
There's a bridge of wondrous light, Filled with colours shining bright,

C F C F C G7 C
Red and orange, yellow, and green, The fairest colours ever seen.

F C G7 C
Blue and violet, magic rose; Down from heaven to earth it goes.

There's a bridge of wondrous light,
Filled with colours shining bright;
Red and orange, yellow and green,
The fairest colours ever seen.
Blue and violet, magic rose;
Down from heaven to earth it goes.
