Repetitive rhyming verses are sure to help with language acquisition. Learning rhymes to recite is an important first step for youngsters beginning to read.

I was given the 'Ladybird book of Nursery Rhymes' as a four year old and because I already knew many of these 'off by heart' it wasn't long before I could make links between the spoken word and the letters on the page.

It's raining on the blue roof,
It's raining on the tree,
It's raining on the sunflower,
But it isn't on me.
It's raining on the big ship,
It's raining on the sea,
It's raining on the whale's back,
But it isn't on me.
It's raining on the butterfly,
It's raining on the bee,
It's raining on the black bird,
But it isn't on me.
