

Who? Who? Who? said the owl

<https://riverofsong.uk/>

For some Halloween can be a little scary and owl wisely confronts our fears, a question to be asked and discussed. Many of us, thankfully, can enjoy the thrill of the unexpected despite our fears. I found this delightful Halloween song in 'Resource Material for Bilingual Education'. Fort Worth Public Schools, Office of Education published Sept. 1972. Music and adapted by Dany Rosevear.

Am E Am

Who - oo? Who - oo? Who? said the owl, Who's a - fraid of Hal - lo - ween? _____

Am E Am E

Black cats here; Black cats there; Fun - ny look - ing fa - ces ev - 'ry - where.

Am E Am E Am

Oh, oh, oh, no, no no! I'm not a - fraid of Hal - lo - ween! _____

Who-oo? Who-oo? Who? said the owl,
Who's afraid of Halloween?

Who-oo? Who-oo? Who? said the owl;
Who's afraid of Halloween?

Black cats here;
Black cats there;

Funny looking faces everywhere.

Oh, oh, oh, no, no, no!

I'm not afraid of Halloween!

I'm not afraid of Halloween!
