A poem by Christina Rossetti. The tune is by Dany Rosevear who remembers from her childhood with pleasure such breakfasts of bread soaked in warm milk and sprinkled with sugar.

1. Feed self and rub tummy. 2. Show off clothes. 3. Thumb and forefinger peck at crumb in hand. 4. Shiver and rub arms.

Bread and milk for breakfast,
And woollen frocks to wear,
And a crumb for robin redbreast
On the cold days of the year.
