

John Smith, fellow fine

<https://riverofsong.uk/>

*This is just one of the many 'English' nursery rhymes that originated in Scotland.
Jog your toddler on your lap as you sing this song.*

Alternatively hold feet and tap them together in time to the music, then tap toes and heel followed by bouncing child up and down for the last two lines.

John Smith, fellow fine, Can you shoe this horse of mine?
Yes indeed, that I can, Just as well as any man!
There's a nail upon the toe, For to make the pony go.
There's a nail upon the heel, For to make him scamper well.

John Smith, fellow fine,
Can you shoe this horse of mine?
Yes indeed, that I can
Just as well as any man!
There's a nail upon the toe,
For to make the pony go;
There's a nail upon the heel,
For to make him scamper well.
Scamper well, scamper well,
For to make him scamper well.
