

Be kind to one another

<https://riverofsong.uk/>

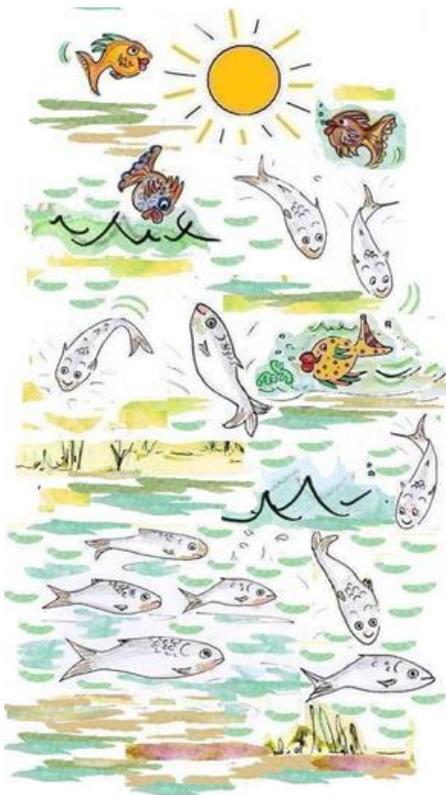

The way to a happier world.

Inspire children in a school assembly or class discussion to consider how they can make a difference to the well-being of each other and our one world.

Let us hope that thinking can be translated to a more thoughtful attitude to our own, very dear planet. Let's make the world smile.

Words and music by Dany Rosevear inspired by the first couplet.

Be kind to one an - o - ther and ev - 'ry liv - ing thing, The fish swim - ing in the wa - ter, the bird up - on the wing, Each ti - ny lit - tle crea - ture be it ant or worm or flea; With kind - ness, care and lov - ing, make a world you'd like to see.

Be kind to one another and every living thing,
The fish swimming in the water, the bird upon the wing.
Each tiny little creature be it ant or worm or flea;
With kindness, care and loving, make a world you'd like to see.

Be kind at play together, you'll be happy all the day,
Shun careless words and think a while of lovely things to say.
Like brilliant, bravo, well done, how are you, thank you, please;
With kindness, care and loving, make a world you'd like to see.

And spread that kindness far and wide, wherever you would go,
Across earth's mountain ranges, to oceans far below.

To dolphin, whale, orang-utan, each animal in need;
With kindness, care and loving, make a world you'd like to see.

So hug a tree, walk barefoot and let the fresh air in,
Appreciate just what we have, show gratitude within.

Then plant a tree, turn off the lights and start a compost pile;
With kindness, care and loving, feel the world give you a smile!
With kindness, care and loving, feel the world give you a smile!
