

A Spring song

<https://riverofsong.uk/>

A celebration of the new season. This song has been adapted from its infant school assembly origins to accommodate a wider, more inclusive secular audience. From 'The nursery song and picture book' published 1935 with words by Winifred E. Barnard and music by Eric G. Barnard. Arranged and adapted by Dany Rosevear.

All the flow - ers are wak - ing, Spring — has come a - gain; —
Wak - ing with the sun - shine, And the gen - tle rain. —

All the flowers are waking,
Spring has come again.
Waking with the sunshine,
And the gentle rain.

All the trees are waking,
Spring has come again.
Waking in the sunshine,
And the gentle rain.

All the birds are singing,
Spring has come again.
Singing in the sunshine,
Singing in the rain.

A verse for winter
All the flowers are sleeping
Underneath the ground;
Sleeping in the winter,
Sleeping safe and sound.
