

Dancing daffodils

A cheerful song for early Spring. In warm hollows and on sunny banks daffodils are beginning to push their way through from February onwards; perhaps not as early as the snowdrops but certainly one of the heralds of Spring.

Words and music by Dany Rosevear inspired by a Japanese Haiku.

A gentle circle dance or one with waving yellow scarves would well with this song.

It may be cold, there may be chills, But it's ear - ly Spring and there's daf - fo - dils, Dan - cing daf - fo - dils! La la la, la la la, La la la, la la la, la la la, La la la, la la la, La la, la la la, la.
Dan - cing daf - fo - dils!

It may be cold, there may be chills,
But it's early Spring and there's daffodils,
Dancing daffodils!
La la la, la la la,
La la la, la la la, la la la,
La la la, la la la,
La la, la la la, la,
Dancing daffodils,
Dancing daffodils.
